MARTIN LUTHER 1483—1546

REFORMATION SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31, 2023 [506 YEARS LATER]

'95 Theses'

On October 31, 1517, Luther, angry with Pope Leo X's new round of indulgences to help build St. Peter's Basilica, nailed a sheet of paper with his 95 Theses on the University of Wittenberg's chapel door.

Though Luther intended these to be discussion points, the 95 Theses laid out a devastating critique of the indulgences - good works, which often involved monetary donations, that popes could grant to the people to cancel out penance for sins - as corrupting people's faith.

Luther also sent a copy to Archbishop Albert Albrecht of Mainz, calling on him to end the sale of indulgences. Aided by the printing press, copies of the 95 Theses spread throughout Germany within two weeks and throughout Europe within two months.

The Church eventually moved to stop the act of defiance. In October 1518, at a meeting with Cardinal Thomas Cajetan in Augsburg, Luther was ordered to recant his 95 Theses by the authority of the pope.

Luther said he would not recant unless scripture proved him wrong. He went further, stating he didn't consider that the papacy had the authority to interpret scripture. The meeting ended in a shouting match and initiated his ultimate excommunication from the Church.

Lutheran Church

Though still under threat of arrest, Luther returned to Wittenberg Castle Church, in Eisenbach, in May 1522 to organize a new church, Lutheranism.
